HAPPENINGS

Dallas Art Fair

Miami has Art Basel. Los Angeles has the Los Angeles Art Show. Now, thank goodness, we have the Dallas Art Fair. (For more on the event organizers, see story on page 9.) Thirty prominent art dealers from across the country are bringing their wares to us to buy, and the artists they are bringing are pretty spectacular: Damien Hirst, Chuck Close, Joan Mitchell, John Chamberlain, and more. The focus is modern and contemporary art, and there is also a Symposium Series featuring art experts. Feb 6-8, various times. The Fashion Industry Gallery, 1807 Ross Ave. dallasartfair.com.

HAPPENINGS

Robin Williams

We admit that we have a love/hate relationship with Robin Williams. We loved him in Mork and Mindy (obviously). And Dead Poets Society was great, and, of course, Good Will Hunting never fails to make us cry ("It's not your fault"). Since then, we've been iffy (RV comes to mind). But we've seen him do stand-up on television and it was pretty darn funny, so we're hoping to get tickets to this show. And he's got really furry arms, which makes us laugh just thinking about it. Feb 20, 8 PM. Nokia Theatre, 1001 Next Stage Dr., Grand Prairie. 972-854-5111. nokialivedfw.com.

GALAS & BENEFITS

St. Valentine's Day Luncheon and Fashion Show

It's the 25th anniversary for this event, so you know it's going to be good. Benefiting the Leukemia and Lymphoma Society, the luncheon has a similar format every year (clothes from Stanley Korshak, production by Jan Strimple, Clarice Tinsley as emcee), but it's always a blast. And it's fun to count how many ladies show up in red or pink suits. Feb 13, 10:30 AM. The Hilton Anatole, 2201 Stemmons Fwy. lts.org/ntx/valentines.

Smuckers Stars on Ice! On the Edge

Here's a Valentine's Day alternative for those of you with kids who love skating. Or for those with a fetish for men in tight pants. Okay, that's pretty much everyone. Regardless, this is a great way to get fired up for the 2010 Winter Olympics (go Vancouver!). Olympic silver medalist Sasha Cohen is performing, along with a host of others, including U.S. champ and two-time world championship bronze medalist Evan Lysacek, who is skating in Dallas only. Feb 14, 3 PM. American Airlines Center, 2500 Victory Ave. 214-665-4797. ticketmaster.com.
